Buckeye Hybrids is developing a strong reputation for our outstanding wheat performance and high test weight. We have four excellent wheat varieties. We are excited about our new variety Jackson, a medium maturity wheat that offers truly outstanding test weight, disease tolerance and yield potential.

ZEKE – Very early variety that is ideal for double cropping soybeans. It has strong yield potential, nice test weight, very good head scab tolerance, and a good leaf disease package. Medium short with a bearded head.

BARRETT - This early smooth wheat is another good choice for double cropping. It has an excellent disease package, including best-in-class tolerance to head scab. It has medium height with excellent standability making it a good candidate for high management.

JACKSON - NEW! – A medium maturity wheat with excellent test weight and high yield potential. It has a nice general disease package, including very good head scab tolerance, and adapts well to various soil types. Medium tall with a bearded head.

MEYER - This variety has great eye appeal. It has medium height with a smooth head. A great mid-season choice with very high yield potential, heavy test weight, and a nice disease package, including very good head scab tolerance. Tillers well and can provide nice straw yields.
